

EGSAMP Summer School 2023 in Morimondo (Italia)

Dark Ages and Fake News. Beliefs, Impostures and Debunking in and about Medieval Thought

4-8 September 2023

EGSAMP (European Graduate School for Ancient and Medieval Philosophy)

<http://egsamp.phil-fak.uni-koeln.de/22368.html>

in cooperation with the

Dipartimento di Studi Umanistici, Università degli studi di Torino

The EGSAMP Summer School 2023 will be organized in cooperation with the chair of Medieval & Ancient philosophy and the philosophy of Dante (Pasquale Porro, Torino) in the Abbazia Morimondo, a former Cistercian monastery located a few kilometers south of Abbiategrasso in the Metropolitan City of Milan, Lombardy (<https://www.abbaziamorimondo.it/>).

The summer school's topic "Dark Ages and Fake News. Beliefs, Impostures and Debunking in and about Medieval Thought" reflects upon actual epistemological and societal issues, even if the thematic focus of the summer school remains medieval. Participants are welcome to further develop this topic.

Moreover, PhD students and Postdoc fellows are invited to present their PhD and research projects – comme d'habitude – at the summer school, preferably in connection with the general theme. Participants will have the opportunity to discuss their ongoing research, enhance their competence in the various fields of editing and analysing philosophical texts and get helpful feedback regarding their projects by internationally renowned scholars.

Application requirements:

PhD students and Postdocs interested in taking part in the summer school are invited to send a CV and a short abstract (max. 300 words) of their proposed paper by 15 April.

All participants should submit their application by 1 May.

Accommodation:

Participants will enjoy free accommodation and meals. In addition, a limited number of travel stipends can be provided by EGSAMP.
